

Dates back to the 15th century, when it was the palace of the Arias Davila family. The tower is covered with many different designs of esgrafiado. It preserves original coffered ceilings, and houses nowadays the Regional Delegation of Treasury Department.